Port re-opens, both sides agree to arbitration

By David Weller

Port workers went back to work Thursday morning after the Engineers and Scientists of California (ESC) labor union and the Port Commission agreed to send their contract dispute to an independent arbitrator.

The strike lasted from 7:00 am Tuesday until midnight on Wednesday. The parties agreed to go to an arbitrator at 4:30 on Wednesday. At issue was a disagreement in the terms of a tentative wage increase agreement affecting two clerical workers.

The arbitrator has not been chosen yet, and none of the details of the hearing procedures have been worked out, but both sides appear to be eager to get the matter settled fast.

"We're pressing for completion of arbitration and a settlement as soon as possible." said John Sulpizio, Assistant Port Director. He went on to explain that contract negotiations cannot continue until the strike issue is settled.

ESC negotiator Michael Aidin is just as eager to get the arbitration hearings under way. He expects to have a list of qualified arbiters from the State Mediation Service by the end of the week. "I am asking for names [provided by the state] that have early availability" he said.

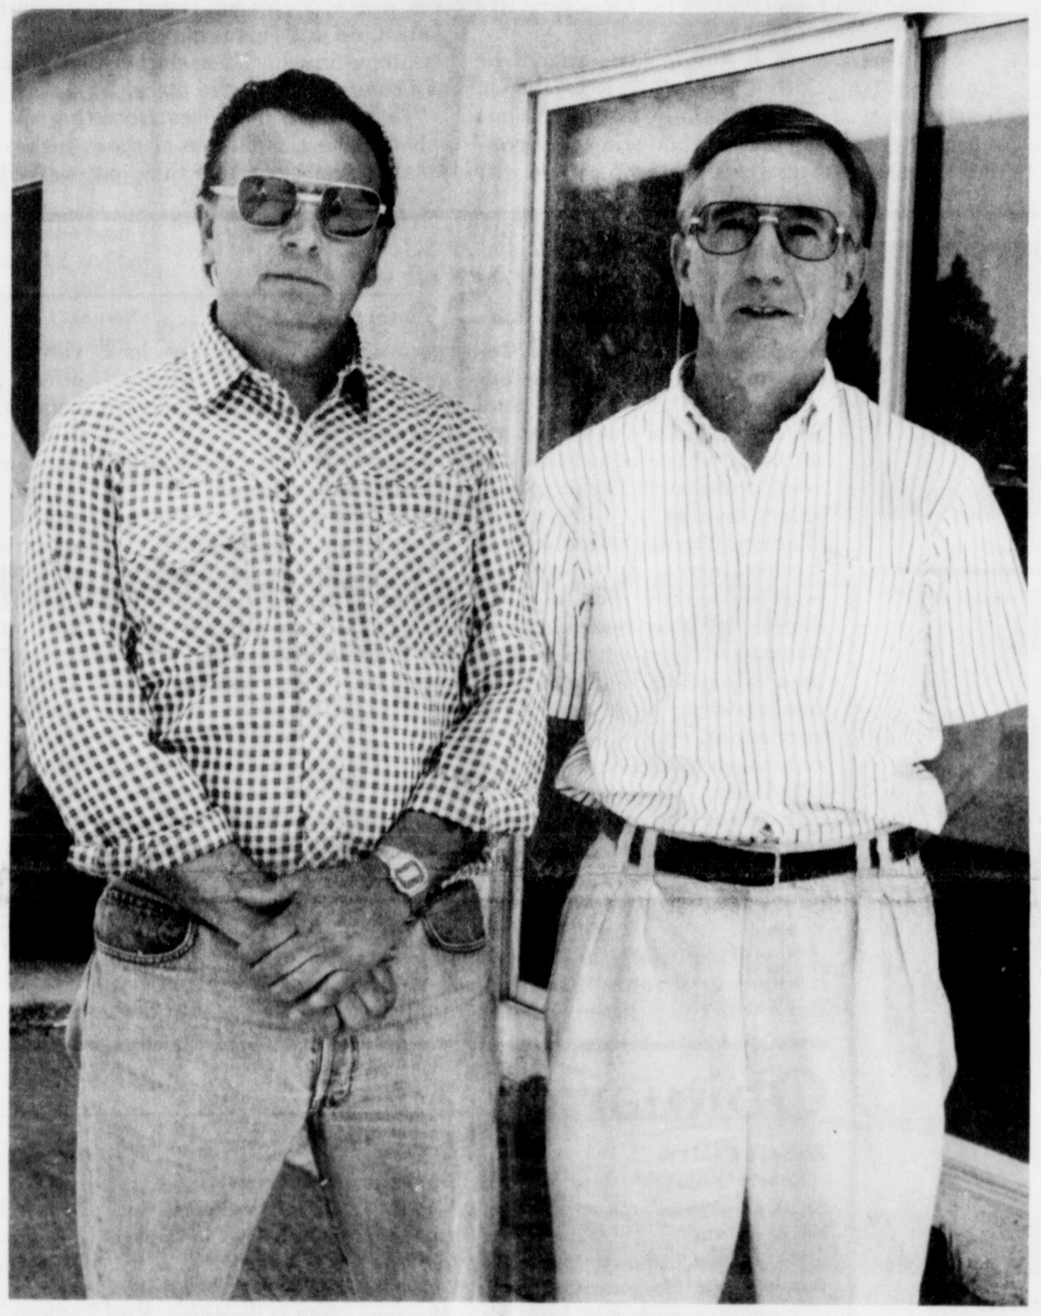
The ESC workers at the port have been working without a contract since June of 1993. Both sides had reached a tentative agreement on wage increases which included a 3% raise retroactive to January 1994, another 3% raise to take effect in July of 1994, and a third 3% raise to take effect in July of 1995.

The agreement also included a 10% increase for the two workers in question, "in recognition of additional duties," said Sulpizio.

The Port Commission and ESC disagree over how much of an increase they have agreed to pay the two workers. Aidin, who negotiated the contract for the union, argued that since the negotiated agreement did not specifically exclude the two workers from the series of 3% raises, it negotiated on behalf of everyone in the union, and that additional 10% for the two workers should be added to the first raise, which is to be retroactive to January 1. His interpretation, he says, follows a "universal standard in labor negotiation language" which says that "anyone not specifically excluded from the terms of a contract is automatically included."

According to Sulpizio, the conflict is based on "what I continue to assert is an honest difference of opinion." He said that he believed the increases for the two clerical workers were being negotiated sepearately from the increases for the other union members. He also said that the Port Commission had agreed on Monday night to compromise and give the two an 11 and a half per cent raise.

Whistleblowers or troublemakers?



John Parent and Jerry Prosser, the two City of West Sacramento employees whose cries of "Foul!" have brought television cameras and government investigators to the West Sacramento sewage treatment plant

By Steve Marschke

Meet the two responsible for the firestorm: Jerry Prosser and John Parent are -- depending on your point of view -- either the "whistleblowers" or the "disgruntled employees" who have brought media scrutiny and state and federal investigations to the West Sacramento Wastewater Treatment Plant on South River Road.

The two say they have been trying to get city management to fix problems at the plant for over a year, but have been met with hostility.

Prosser, an industrial pre-treatment inspector, is currently out on stress leave. He says his life has been threatened and he has been treated unfairly by management in the public works department because of his outspokenness.

Parent, a shop steward for the department, has recently been on "light duty" for the department because of a back injury. But city officials, he said, have put him on leave and asked him to accept early retirement in May at the age of 50.

Both say they have experienced job discrimination and threats of physical violence from management concerned with investigations at the plant.

A third whistleblower, recently retired lab technician Ann Reitz, has been backing up some of the pair's claims. She told a television reported Tuesday that hundreds of water quality violations went unreported at the plant during 1993 alone.

"If they want to go back to 1991-92, they'd have even more violations," said Prosser.

Prosser himself worked with a TV news agency this week to expose the public works department practice of dumping junk on the riverbank -- a practice recently discontinued.

The city, meanwhile, emphasizes that it is working in good faith to take care of any problems at the plant. City manager Joe Goeden last week said he resented the demand of a Sacramento environmental group that he fire public works director Larry Gossett, saying that Gossett was "part of the solution."

"There were clearly misunderstandings, misinterpretations and miscommunications between treatment plant personnel," Goeden's office wrote in a press release this week. "To provide immediate assurance to the (State Regional Water Quality Board) and the public, the City has offered to fund a full-time inspector selected and assigned by the Board to provide increased regulatory oversight of the plant."

West Sacramento also has hired the engineering firm CH2M HILL to review plant operations, and has made some of the results public.

"The City has been in an evolutionary process to improve its operations," Goeden's press release continued. "The City has always attempted to be responsive to plant issues as those issues were brought to our attention, with particular emphasis on Board (Notice of Violation)."

The statement also mentioned that the West Sacramento city council has committed to purchase new sewage treatment equipment to help the plant, and has instructed plant personnel in proper testing and reporting techniques.

In an April 15 letter to the water board, Goeden explained that the failure of plant personnel to report the results of many of their tests was because "these early morning tests were done for operation and calibration purposes, and the plant staff apparently did not recognize the need to report them."

Public works department staff have not recently commented on the allegations, and both state and federal officials are investigating.

School district spends leftover money

by John Siden

What a difference a year makes!

Last year at this time trustees of the Washington Unified School District were struggling to cut $500,000 to meet an anticipated shortfall in their 1993-94 budget.

No such cloud hangs over the district this year, and trustees at their regular meeting last Thursday bought new vehicles, gave raises to district teachers, hired consultants, and increased their budget for legal services.

When they finished a little more than an hour later, their votes added $430,000 to the district's expenses for the year.

The money should be easy to come by. For one thing, the shortfall never developed this year because spending reductions at the end of last year made it possible to carry over a large sum of money. Concerns that the legislature would cut school spend-

Tension eases but Teamster strike continues

By David Weller

Chris Folkman, of the Teamsters Local 150, reported on Tuesday that tensions have eased among the local striking truckers since the two sides have gone back to the bargaining table.

The union has been on strike nationwide since April 6, six days after the Teamsters rejected a contract offer made by Trucking Management, Incorporated (TMI) on March 31. The strike involves about 300 drivers and dockworkers at Roadway Express on West Capitol Avenue, and a smaller number of workers at Consolidated Freightways on F Street near Jefferson Blvd.

The issues in dispute include TMI proposals to begin using railways for a large portion of their cross-country shipping, to hire part-time workers at $9.00 per hour (about half the current full-time starting wage), and to give control of the retirement benefits program for the new part-timers to the individual companies instead of to the unions.

The companies currently pay retirement benefits at a rate of $2.80 per hour into a fund that the Union controls. TMI's proposal would have the companies paying the new part-time employees retirement benefits at a rate of 50 cents per hour into funds controlled by each of the companies.

After being away from the table since March, the two sides finally started meeting again on Monday. On Tuesday negotiators announced that they were going into around the clock sessions, which Folkman interpreted as a good sign. Since the meetings began on Monday, no specific details on the progress of negotiations have been announced.

Folkman also interprets the lack of information as a good sign. "As long as they are making progress, they won't stop to talk about it," he said.

Chemical spill from unknown vehicle shuts freeway for two hours

By David Weller

The eastbound lanes of Highway 50 were closed for 2 hours Monday because of a hazardous materials spill. At about 3 pm, the California Highway Patrol asked for support from the West Sacramento Fire Department for a routine traffic accident.

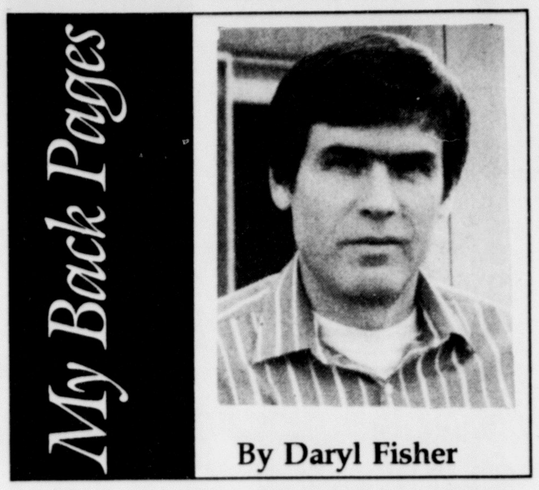
By 3:15 they began to suspect that the white power on the road was some kind of caustic substance. At first they tried closing only one lane, but the wind from the traffic was blowing the material around, making it necessary to close off the freeway.

Hazardous materials technicians from the fire department were called to the scene, and the process of identification began by 3:30. A private Hazardous Materials clean-up company was also called to remove the substance from the road.

By 4:15, Bill Summers, the fire Department's Hazardous Materials Manager, identified the substance as calcium hydroxide, which is highly alkaline. It is considered a "nuisance hazard", according to Summers, because of its highly corrosive nature. Summers believes that it was probably intended for use as an agricultural product. It is often used as Ph adjustor for acidic soils.

The vehicle the material fell off of was not identified, and the bag it must have been packed in was never found.

An army sergeant's respect for higher education. . .



by Daryl Fisher

Fort Lewis, Washington in early February of 1969 was not a very hospitable place, especially if you were already homesick before you even got there.

A decrepit old military bus unceremoniously dumped us off in the middle of the frozen night and some foul-mouthed sergeant wearing a Smokey the Bear hat pulled all the way down over his eyebrows seemed determined to keep screaming at us until dawn.

A wet, blowing snow kept falling and my Sacramento attire (a short-sleeved shirt, cords, tennis shoes and a windbreaker) simply wasn't keeping any of my important body parts warm.

Harry Allen Ketchum, on the other hand, was layered in the proper clothing and appeared to be almost oblivious to a windchill factor which had to be below zero. He suddenly nudged me hard with his bony little elbow.

"What?" I asked.

"Your teeth are chattering, man — and it's driving me nuts."

"Well, excuse me."

"Quiet down there!" screamed Smokey the Bear.

For reasons completely unknown to me, Harry, a 21-year-old male model and former Golden Gloves boxing champion (or at least that was what he claimed to be) from Buffalo, New York, had aggressively befriended me the moment I sat down next to him for the hour or so bus ride from the airport to the induction center. He was hyper, arrogant and vulgar, but I liked him immediately. That didn't seem to surprise him in the least. He apparently was very accustomed to being liked.

"I wonder if we're ever going to get to eat around this damn place?" he asked me as we stood around in ankle-deep snow and tried unsuccessfully to blow some warmth into our hands.

"How can you even think of food at a time like this? I'm freezing to death here."

"It's all part of their stupid little game," he explained. "This clown is trying to break us down. It's the oldest Army trick in the book. It's the same reason they're going to shave our heads tomorrow and make us all wear green underwear. And why do you think our bus just happened to get here at 3:30 in the morning? Mentally and physically, they want to mess with our heads — break us down — and for the next nine weeks, this is going to be nothing but one big crock of..."

Smokey the Bear was suddenly right in Harry's face. "I thought I told you to be quiet!"

"Excuse me, Sergeant," I said politely, worried that if I wasn't allowed to go to the bathroom soon my first act as a soldier was going to be a pretty disgusting one, "but how much longer do you think we're going to have to stand out here in the snow? I have to go to the bathroom — and I'm freezing." Harry was impressed.

"Cold are you?" asked the sergeant with compassion. "Do you know what's really good for that?" I shook my head no. "Running in place!" he roared. "Now get those knees up! I want to see them touching your chin!"

As I began running in place, the sergeant made his way back to the center of the formation and yelled, "Now listen up! Have any of you boys been to college?"

Harry's eyes lit up and he thrust his hand high into the air and waved it back and forth for all he was worth. "Come on, Daryl," he urged me, "get your hand up! This is our chance, man."

"Chance for what?" I asked between gasps for air as I continued to jog in place.

"To separate ourselves from the rest of this rabble. Check out some of these turkeys, man. Most of them look like they just walked off the mountain."

I glanced around and only two or three other hands had been raised. "I don't know, Harry. Just before I left, my dad told me whatever I do, don't volunteer for anything."

He shook his head in disbelief. "You're going to blow it big time, man. They're probably looking for officer material or something. Now get your hand up!"

I reluctantly raised my hand and quickly discovered that jogging in place is much more difficult that way. I kept tipping over towards Harry and he kept angrily showing me back where I belonged.

"I only see five hands," bellowed the sergeant, "but I guess that'll have to do. Okay, now those of you with your hand up, please step forward."

I didn't particularly like the way he said "please," but I gladly stopped jogging and stepped to the front with Harry.

"Did I tell you you could stop running in place?" the sergeant screamed at me. Only after I quickly began churning away again did he resume his train of thought. "Alright, now, I've got a real treat for you college boys!" A huge, sadistic grin spread out all over his face. "You get to spend your first 24 hours in the United States Army pulling KP duty! My congratulations to each and every one of you little college smart-asses!"

The rabble behind us burst into laughter.

ing proved to be unfounded. Cities and counties suffered, but schools were untouched. And because of all of the vacant administrative positions in the district, the district has realized salary savings.

The pool of available money was further increased by cuts the board did make in spending. The district left four teaching positions vacant this year, eliminated an administrator and a maintenance position and made cuts in curriculum and other areas to reduce spending by a half-million dollars.

Recalling the board's cuts in curriculum and personnel, outgoing trustee Linda Brooks questioned recommendations to buy vehicles.

"I will vote for (the driver's training car) because of the need. But I won't vote again (for any more equipment) until we look at the overall cuts made last year," she said before the vote was taken.

Superintendent David Miller attempted to reassure her. "I'm a prudent spender. We're not going on a spending spree."

The trustee voted to approve the purchase of the car at a cost of $13,000 and a $19,000 tractor for the grounds department. Both purchases are replacements for aged vehicles in the district's fleet.

The trustees unamimously appointed former board member Daryl Fisher to the district's curriculum and instruction advisory committee. Board members gave the nod of approval to a proposed reorganization of the district office. The plan will make the vacant personnel director into a third assistant superintendent by giving the position additional duties. Added will be supervision of attendance and educational support services and the responsibility for pupil personnel services — the 12-person unit of nurses, psychologists, and special education specialists. The district has already recruited for the position, although the board has not yet adopted a job description.

■ Agreed to spend up to $8,000 for a consultant to help in applying for state funds to construct and modernize the district's schools;

The Sports Insider

The 1994 NFL draft this weekend starts a two-day adventure for the 49ers. The Niners are about $675,000 under the NFL's new $34.6 million salary cap, forcing them to make some moves to reach the $1.08 million minimum needed to exercise their ten selections.

If the 49ers sign Dallas linebacker Ken Norton, who wants $8 million over five years, they will have to shed even more money from their roster. The team has no money to re-sign unrestricted free agent veterans Guy McIntyre, Tom Rathman and Don Griffin. San Francisco has ten picks, ranging from its two first round choices to a selection in the seventh and final round.

The 49ers need defense real bad, so look for the 49ers to trade Bono to sign Norton and draft a defensive lineman, cornerback or a linebacker in their first two picks!

The A's and Giants are off to a great start. The A's pitching is still giving up many runs, but they're in first place thanks to home run power provided by McGwire, Sierra and Steinbach. The biggest surprise has been center fielder Stan Javier. Javier has a 12-game hitting streatk and a .423 average and five stolen bases.

The Giants lost two out of three games to the Braves last week, but took two out of three from the Florida Marlins -- but not without a fight, in a 9-8 victory that included a bench-clearing brawl.

Bonds and Williams both have five homers and are providing the Giants with some punch.

The Sacramento Kings (27-51) finish the season on Saturday against the playoff-bound Golden State Warriors (47-31). The Kings had hoped to win 30 games this year, but it looks like they are going to come up short again this year!

Maybe their luck will change this year and they'll get a top draft choice in the lottery in May.

Did you know the Chicago Bulls have won 54 games this year -- one less than last year, with Michael Jordan?!!

See ya next week!!

Sondra O'Rourke, a candidate for West Sacramento City Council, recently mailed the News-Ledger an appeal from her quarters at the Yolo County Jail, where she said she is being held unjustly.

O'Rourke said she was arrested on assault charges for allegedly striking a neighbor with "a six inch stick," when she was merely defending herself at the time.

"I am in the Monroe Detention Center with a bail of $25,000," she wrote. "Initial charge - assault with a stick. The stick in question was six inches long, approximately two inches wide."

O'Rourke asked residents for financial help in fighting the legal system, and said they could be sent to attorney Philip D. McCarthy, 925 F St., Sacramento, CA 95814.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Violations were more than "miscommunications"

This week, West Sacramento city hall admitted some violations of water quality laws by its sewage treatment plant, saying they were the fault of "misunderstandings, misinterpretations and miscommunications" between treatment plant personnel.

This is somewhat lame.

A huge quantity of faulty practices have been going on at the plant, and neither the public works department nor city hall took any measures to stop most of them until regional newspapers and television took note during the past few weeks. It is impossible that all of these problems were due to "misunderstandings" and the like.

It is obvious to everyone in the Sacramento region who does not work at West Sacramento hall that somebody important knew what was going on at the plant and made a choice not to do anything about it. Keep in mind, for example, that some of the most serious allegations were first reported in the News-Ledger a half-year ago, and were steadfastly denied by management and city hall. They have since been corroborated by investigations by state and federal officials.

Throughout the recent media siege, city officials have maintained the same wrong-headed approach they showed then: they protected the management officials who are responsible for coverups and mistakes at the plant, while publicly and privately trying to discredit the "whistleblowers" who went public with what has so far been proven to be the "truth."

It is high time they reverse that policy.

Letters to the Editor

Sewage plant

Re: Wastewater Treatment Plant disgrace — a standing ovation for Mr. Jerry Prosser, Mr. John Parent, Ms. Ann Reitz and others who demonstrated the courage of their convictions. A huge thank you from men, women, children, birds, fish and all the ships at sea.

To those who deliberately abused their authority and those who meekly chose to obey orders, remember there is a kind of pollution far more dreadful than any we can see or touch. In the words of the poet Shelley,...

"Power, like a desolating pestilence.

Pollutes whate'er it touches; and obedience,

Bane of all genius, virtue, freedom, truth,

Makes slaves of men, and, of the human frame,

A mechanized automation."

As for the threat directed at Mr. Prosser that "a bullet has his name on it." Remember another poet's immortal words..."What stronger breastplate than a heart untainted!" (Shakespeare). Still, given the outcome of many of his plays, lots of publicity and news coverage may be a more reliable protection. Also, I'm sure local citizens are expecting the city police to seriously investigate this threat and take appropriate and accountable action to protect a true modern day hero.

HOPE HERR
West Sacramento

More on the plant...

As anyone could have predicted, the city's "ostrich" approach for responding to the serious health, environmental, and criminal charges of fraudulent mismanagement of the wastewater treatment plant has failed miserably. As a result of short-sighted inaction by the Public Works Department and, ultimately, the city council, West Sacramento faces lawsuits by city employees and the Sacramento Valley Toxics Campaign, criminal investigation by the EPA, and regular notices of violation and "cease and desist" orders by the regional water board. None of these allegations are new; city officials (and everyone else who reads a newspaper) have known of the consistent threats to public health and the environment, and to our city's future, posed by the illegal discharges and dumping at the plant.

We have worked so hard to shed West Sacramento's image as a haven for prostitution and blight. Now we will be branded a rogue, lawless city which callously dumps toxics into the river and cares little about the effects on public health and the environment — hardly the ideal image for a community hoping to become a "premier" waterfront city. Old perceptions die hard; even today, many in the region still think of West Sacramento as the place with undrinkable tap water.

The cost of this ongoing scandal to the city and its economic future could be staggering. In addition to potential litigation from employees and environmental groups, as well as substantial fines from regulatory agencies, we will have tremendous difficulty securing approval for a new wastewater treatment plant that is the foundation for implementation of the Southport plan. Local businesses will be hit with fines and stringent discharge restrictions that could threaten their economic viability. This scandal and the tarnishing of West Sacramento's image will certainly not help our efforts to attract new businesses and residents to our community.

We deserve decisive action from city government. Not a cover-up, not further delay, and certainly not more consultants. The "evolutionary" response promised by the city manager is simply not adequate to restore confidence in the city's ability to operate the wastewater plant.

Those of us who have not been privy to hours of briefing with city staff and consultants about the details of the violations and allegations must refrain from suggesting a detailed course of action. But I have read all of the investigative reports and interviews filed by the special agents in the EPA criminal division, as well as the city's technical response, and it is clear that simply installing new equipment will not be enough.

School board

With just a few meetings remaining with our current school board, I find it interesting, but not surprising, that Hal Williams would once again put on the agenda for discussion and action the topic of selling school owned property. I say not surprising because there has been talk around the community for some time that he was going to do this. The reasons are speculative but they seem to be politically motivated. Why would Mr. Williams want to sell property now when an advisory committee has already advised against the sale of the property at this time? As a reminder, the committee voted 10 to 2 against the sale of the property at this time.

Mr. Williams has often said the school district should not be in the real estate business. I agree that the district should not be buying and selling land for profit or investment purposes. This is not the same thing. The district has owned this property for many years. To sell or not to sell the property is not question. The question is, do we sell the property now in a depressed market or do we wait until the market gets stronger and sell for a higher price? This question can be debated both ways with strong arguments on both sides, but it is an argument that needs to wait for the new board.

I ask why Mr. Williams insists on bringing the issue up at this time. Is it because he feels he has the proper votes now that Daryl Fisher has resigned? Is it because he has made promises to his campaign contributors? Or is it because he feels he may not be reelected and now is the time? Whatever the reason, let the issue be decided by the new board.

To bring this matter up at this time has all the markings of a politically motivated action.

On Thursday evening, April 28, the issue will be on the agenda for discussion and possible action. I urge the members of the board to table the discussion until after the elections in order to erase any doubt that their actions are politically motivated.

Candidate, Board of Education

Endorsement

Ardeen Westvik has been a member of this community for thirty years. She has taught here for that length of time, at the old Arlington Oaks school and at various elementary schools in the district. Her last assignment was as principal at Evergreen School.

Vern, her husband, also retired from teaching as a respected member of the staff of Washington High School and James Marshall High School, now known as Golden State and River City.

Their son, Dane, and daughter, Eve, both received their entire education in local schools.

Ardeen is very familiar with the concerns of the seniors in our city, and she is aware of the concern about paying taxes for better school facilities.

As a member of the board of education she will bring her years of residence, as well as her professional experience in understanding the challenge facing us for the next several years.

She has my support.

Bus lines

On April 29 at 10:15 a.m. the Yolo County Transit Authority (YoloBus) will conduct a public hearing concerning some significant proposed changes in West Sacramento's existing public transit/YoloBus system. Said hearing will be conducted in the Port of Sacramento board room at 2101 Stone Blvd., 3rd floor, one floor above city council hearing room.

Some highlights of the proposed changes and comments are as follows:

1) Proposal to cut off the service of the triangle of Westacre/Park to Park/Stone to Stone/Jefferson Blvd. of #40/41 and replace same with "straight shot" ahead on 15th Street. The problem with this is the proposed #39's expansion — while covering said triangle — quits running at about 4 p.m. Therefore, except for one "peak hour" a.m./p.m. run by #41, this cuts off the bus service to city hall for city council, planning commission and school board meetings as now held. While this writer/rider was told to "reactivate" his dial-a-lift card and use the van, since one must call one day in advance for rides and the length of public meetings cannot be predicted accurately, the two seem incompatible.

2) If money is the problem, maybe we should re-allocate four

The Sacramento River registered 2 feet, U .S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Word from Corporal R. Binse, who is now in France, leads to the belief that he has been on the battle line or at least very close to it although he doesn't say so. To the Red Cross Binse gave a great deal of credit for the way it is caring for the boys and managing its affairs. At the time his letter was written he was apparently having a good time and enjoying himself with une petite damoiselle.

Word has been received from Tug Wilson advising he is back in an Atlantic port after a short furlough which he spent in St. Louis, Mo. On the U. S. S. Huntington he has seen a good deal of the Atlantic and perhaps some of the ports at the other side of the pond.

Pat Glenn has returned to the Atlantic Coast after a furlough of three weeks spent with his parents in Riverbank.

Domenico Fendocchio, Raymond Harlow and H. Labour of West Sacramento will entrain on August 30th for training camp. H. Gallup, T. Collins and Otto Roloff all of Riverbank will leave on the same day. Gallup is the third boy in his family to go to the front, and Collins is a married man leaving two young children to be cared for, but he has made provision for them that is satisfactory to Mrs. Collins. Roloff is a single man.

Reclassification of exempted men in Washington has placed Seth Barry, Ray Speicher and Archie Lewis in class 4X instead of class 1X. All are fathers of young children.

The two young children of Mrs. A. Kinch were operated on last Saturday in the Sisters' Hospital in Sacramento for removal of adenoids and tonsils. They are around their home again.

Allen Stockton is back at his work in the Sacramento Postoffice after a week's lay-off caused by a wild auto driver. He was severely hurt while gathering mail although traveling slowly in a U. S. mail wagon. All damages were paid for by the auto driver.

Miss Dorris Norton is at her home after a week's vacation spent with friends at Vallejo.

Word has been received from Percy Eugene that he has left Kelly Field, Texas, for an eastern flying field. Percy has been training for auto machinist during the past six months and may receive his commission soon when he will be sent to France.

Jack Trudell is working might and main to help his friend Dick Strong into the position of District Attorney. Very likely he will be successful next Tuesday for Strong is a strong favorite in Washington. Strong has made a strenuous campaign and is now considered the strongest man in the race.

"There will be some surprises next Tuesday, if current gossip has any foundation around Washington," said one of the old timers yesterday. "The Woodland politicians believe that Washington is not worth their while and the people here are sick of their treatment. Around election time the Woodland vote-hunters are just as nice as pie, and then they forget that Washington is on the map for four years. You watch the returns next Tuesday and I'll bet you will see some surprises."

"Some of the county candidates have not been here at all and some seemed to be afraid to talk to the voters. One would think they were afraid of us. We have nearly 700 votes in this district and it is the balance of power in the county yet we couldn't get a county office if we paid for it. We never could get anything in Woodland.

"I believe that those who are cock-sure of election next Tuesday will get left and for my part I am going to vote for a complete stranger rather than for some of those who have been elected and then forget we in Washington are alive.

"I hate an ingrate and he can never get my vote. I am not surprised that lots of people are talking annexation to Sacramento. That's where we belong by right and Woodland politicians are helping the game.

"Me for annexation to Sacramento as soon as the question comes up."

Mrs. Belle Parkinson has received request from Mrs. Pearl Ericson, Coast President of the Parent-Teachers' Association asking that ladies of the association give a few hours of their time during Fair week in Sacramento to the care of a nursery that is established in the Fair buildings. Many young children will be at the Fair and the association wants a place to care for them properly. Any lady desiring to give part of her time to this work should report to Mrs. Parkinson so that the work may be arranged systematically. Ladies from other adjacent towns will also take a hand in this work.

A bad runaway took place yesterday afternoon on the S. P. bridge which happily ended without serious results. Becoming scared a horse took the bit in his teeth at the top of the incline and raced to Third street. There a freight train was passing and the driver turned north. Near the Town Hall the driver was thrown out and the horse and wagon continued to be stopped on the levee north of Rocky Point. The driver was not badly hurt.

Mrs. Belle Parkinson returned from Santa Cruz last Saturday after serving as Assistant Great Keeper of Records for the Great Council of the Degree of Pocahontas for a week.

J. Kennedy was sent to Woodland for 30 days last Wednesday by Judge Barry on a charge of vagrancy.

John Sanchez was sentenced to 60 days on the same day on a similar charge but of a more aggravated case.

For stealing watermelons G. Lattery was sent to Woodland for 30 days last Monday on a charge sworn to by Jim Grace. Lattery was found with the goods on him and pleaded guilty.

Malicious mischief is the only way to class the damage done last Wednesday evening to the Hauser property next to the Postoffice. The door was dragged from its hinges and a rock was thrown through the glass front. There was apparently no reason for the damage, except malicious mischief.

Mrs. Mabel Peterson and daughter Marie are at home after a week's vacation in San Francisco.

John Allerton and little daughter are in San Francisco for a short visit.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Eugene are at home after several days spent at San Leandro.

Rev. J. Lowes and family are at home from Santa Cruz after a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Kiff and Ardella Manchester returned from Dillon's Beach and Bodega Bay last Monday, where they spent two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Flora Knox, who has been spending this past summer in Washington and Sacramento, left yesterday for the Eastern States, with the probability that she will make her future home there. During her visit here, she was a guest of several local families who are sorry to see her leave.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB'S CONSIDERATION OF CHANGE OF NAME POSTPONED

ADVICE OF CONGRESSMAN CURRY EXPECTED SOON REGARDING ANY ASSISTANCE HE MAY BE ABLE TO OFFER THE CLUB

At the meeting of the Washington Improvement Club last Tuesday evening, it was decided to postpone any action the members of the club might take concerning a change in the name of the postoffice of Town until word could be received from Congressman Curry as to what assistance he might be able to render in the matter.

Discussing the subject quietly the members of the club expressed themselves again as being non-antagonistic to the name "Broderick," but at the same time desiring a name that would apply to the town, the postoffice and the district.

It is the confusion of names to which the people object, not to the name "Broderick." It is the belittling effect this confusion of names brings that objection is raised.

When Yolo County was divided into political units, the district was named Washington and so remained for several years. Gradually the town built up, more residents coming and more homes being established as time rolled by.

Unfortunately, Washington, Nevada County, a large mining center in the foothills of the Sierras, secured the name "Washington" for its postoffice and since that time retained that name without interruption.

Probably three times as many people make their homes in Washington district, Yolo County, as there are in Washington, Nevada County, any action the members of the club might take would not allow the name to be repeated as a name for a postoffice.

Word from Congressman Curry is expected any day by the club, when it is probable definite action will be taken on the question.

The offer that had been made some time ago to the Improvement Club for its piano in the Town Hall was shown to be a fake. The party making the offer had no authority to do so, hence the decision reached last Tuesday was to permit the club's piano to remain in the Town Hall as part of the equipment of the building.

Some time ago it was rumored that the Fire Commissioners intended to place another piano in the building that would be free to all comers and an inducement for renting the hall. The Commissioners are reluctant on this question and advise that they had not finally decided to go to the expense of purchasing a piano as long as that owned by the Improvement Club is in the premises.

This question was dropped until something definite could be learned as to what the intentions of the Fire Commissioners would be on the subject.

In regard to the repairs now being made to the roadway leading west from the S. P. bridge, the club signified its complete approval but also desired that before the improvement could be made, the low spots between Third and Fourth and Fourth and Fifth streets should be filled on a level with the S. P. tracks.

Knowing the condition of railroad traffic at this moment and the great demand for railroad cars, it seemed impossible to secure the necessary filling for these low spots and therefore it was passed to some future time.

Resolutions of sympathy were ordered drawn to be sent to the Norton family on the loss sustained by it in the death of Almer Norton, the first native of Washington to fall in his country's cause.

A number of preachers are reported to be touring the State in the interest of the Rominger Bill.

From that fact, it is safe to infer that the Rominger Bill is rotten, immoral and dangerous.

of the Southport/#39 runs from late a.m./early p.m. to later p.m., leaving one mid-day run intact.

3) Allow the #41 to continue down Jefferson/right onto Stone Blvd./continue straight on Industrial Blvd. to main post office/back to social security office and across Business 80 on Harbor Blvd. to West Capitol Ave. Perhaps #41 should then continue north to Rice Ave., turning right, working eastward past the Holly/Maple juncture to Michigan/Jefferson, where transfers can be obtained at the main juncture of West Capitol and Merkley Ave. is planned.

These are just some of the thoughts that come to mind, with #3 emphasizing the need for expanded service to our industrial area.

Other ideas are welcome and will see you at the April 29 meeting.
